Statement

Report of NCRB on Violence Against Women

NCRB compiles statistical information on crimes, including crimes against women, which is published in its annual publication "Crime in India". NCRB has not published a separate report on "Violence Against women". On the basis of figures supplied by NCRB however, the Department of Women & Child Development, Ministry of Human Resource Development has recently brought out a fact sheet on crimes against women.

With regard to the steps being taken to check the rising trend in crimes against women, it may be noted that 'Police' and 'Law and Order' are State subjects and it is for the various State Governments to take steps for the proper registration, investigation, detection and prosecution of crimes, including those against women. However, the Government of India have been writing to the State Governments from time to time drawing their attention to the problem of crimes against women and advising them to take suitable steps in this regard. In addition, a meeting was organised by the Government in New Delhi on 30.11.92 to discuss the problem of violence against women in which concerned officials at the national and State levels as well as voluntary organisations participated. Among the issues discussed were gender sensitisation programmes for law enforcement officials.
